Abstract

Tuberculosis is an infectious disease caused by Mycobacterium tuberculosis infection. This type of disease is generally influenced by the poor nutritional status and lifestyle of the people who are less healthy. Lung disease Pulmonary TB is a disease particularly trigger death. Therefore in this study to be examined about the characteristics and risk factors that affect tuberculosis. Case studies conducted in RSU Haji Surabaya is one reference disurabaya pulmonary TB disease. Data used is secondary data obtained from the medical records of lung poly RSU Haji Surabaya in 2012 consisting of 7 variables: age, sex, nutritional deficiencies, coughing, shortness of breath, coughing up blood and chest pain. The analysis showed that a majority of 54.8% of patients diagnosed with TB Par, under 45 years old and male sex. Risk factors that predispose a patient diagnosed with pulmonary TB were age, nutritional deficiencies, and shortness of breath.

Keywords: binary logistic regression, Tuberculosis, Mycobacterium Tuberculosis
(Halaman ini sengaja dikosongkan)