

ABSTRACT

The existence of the Internet is currently providing benefits directly or indirectly to the world of business, education, community and much more from small to large scale. With the internet the data can be stored, retrieved and transmitted easily all over the. So that can not be denied the existence of the internet website to be the main requirement in the provision of information globalization di era fastest today.

One form of utilization of this facility is by way of making credit analysis applications online. This system will be used to analyze the personality and the income of someone who would do things or building credit.

By using this analysis method is expected to facilitate the admissions process prospective lenders that match the expected criteria so as to streamline the cost and time.

Key word: Leasing