ABSTRACT

PT. Surya Inti Alam is a company of private property which is dedicated to goods and services. Systems work at this company is still manual. Just as in the process of collecting data storage Division. This resulted in the frequent appearance of errors in data collection. Therefore, the author will provide a solution using Microsoft Visual Basic 6.0 to help with the computerized data collection more effective and efficient in order to reduce errors in data collection. Issues to be discussed in this study is how to make the application of data collection and management of goods in a warehouse in PT SIA using Microsoft Visual Basic. Method is the collection of data warehousing is carried out either by the method of monitoring and methods of literature. Then in a few stages of programme development. The results of this study in the form of software, data capture and management of goods in the store for PT SIA is not familiar with computer technology, while still using a manual system.

Key Word : Encoding for Processing Aplication and Warehousing Management